

David Goodman
Chairman
EEMA

David has over twenty years IT and telco experience in senior identity-related positions across a wide range of companies and organizations on both sides of the Atlantic. Starting at University College London, he experienced the acquisition of Soft-Switch by Lotus, Lotus by IBM and helped lead Metamerge, a Norwegian integration middleware start-up, to another acquisition by IBM.

After leaving IBM Tivoli, David ran his own consultancy company and for the last seven years has had product management responsibility for Subscriber Management at Apertio, Nokia Siemens Networks and currently Ericsson, where he is also responsible for evolving big data strategies for telco operators. Whilst living in the United States, he was a member of the pivotal product management team at Lotus during the period of exponential growth of Notes/Domino in the mid- to late nineties.

For over ten years, David has been chairman of eema, the leading European identity and security association.

David graduated from the University of Manchester and went on to complete a D.Phil at the Oriental Institute in Oxford.
