

Ross Little
Secure ID Analyst
ATOS

Ross Little works in the Secure Identity Technologies Lab within Atos Research & Innovation and has worked in several projects to promote Privacy by Design and Security by Design. More recently he is focused on ICT Cloud and Big Data projects with the goal to ensure that software designers take into consideration a user centric approach in protecting personal data, together with incorporating security measures from the initial design of their system to provide an appropriate level of protection for their assets.